Dimensionalizing Cultures: The Hofstede Model in Context

British anthropologist Mary Douglas (1973) proposed a two-dimensional ordering of ways of looking at the world: 1. 'Group' or inclusion - the claim of groups over members, and 2. 'Grid' or classification - the degree to which interaction is subject to rules. Douglas saw these categories as relating to a wide variety of beliefs and social actions:

The Mission and Ministry of the Whole Church

The history and character of the Church of England, attempting as it does to hold together different emphases and understandings of ministry, often make it difficult for us to handle these questions in a coherent and united way. The difficulty frequently surfaces (or lies just below the surface) in General Synod debates on ecumenical,
